British Council - International Education Week 2020 (Staff/resources)

“Every November we come together to recognise the value of bringing the world into the classroom and celebrate international work in schools. This year we are excited to be going online. For the first time ever, we are offering a week of fantastic events that you can access wherever you are in the world.”

A host of experts from around the world will be sharing their experiences through online webinars, as well as freely available ideas and activities for the classroom.

WWF - Future Visions Challenge (KS2/KS3)

“WWF would like to amplify some of the future visions of young people over the months ahead, especially around Earth hour in March 2021 and leading up to COP26 in Glasgow in November 2021.”

“WWF would like to amplify some of the future visions of young people over the months ahead, especially around Earth hour in March 2021 and leading up to COP26 in Glasgow in November 2021.”

Often, children are well educated as to the damages that humans are causing to the environment, but this activity looks at the positive potential for change in the face of the growing environmental crisis. Imagination and problem solving is what learners will need to employ to envision how future civilisations, which work in harmony with the environment, might look.

Connecting Classrooms - Learning from a pandemic. (KS2/KS3)

“This resource will help you make a contribution to a recovery curriculum in schools, and beyond this, by providing interesting, engaging and relevant content that encourages pupils to recall, discuss and process some of their thoughts, feelings and memories.”

This resource is designed to support the United Nations' Global Goals for Sustainable Development (SDGs), in particular Goal 3: Good health and well-being.
